Cox and the Government of El Salvador sign an agreement to invest USD 2.9 billion in energy and water

Cox announces that it has entered into an investment agreement with the Government of El Salvador for the development of four strategic partnerships in the energy and water sectors: battery energy storage, solar photovoltaic power generation, natural gas infrastructure, and a water and sanitation plan, in which the State of El Salvador is expected to participate as a partner.

Subject to the relevant approvals and the execution of the corresponding definitive agreements, Cox will be responsible for structuring the financing of the projects on a project finance basis, with international financial institutions, multilateral institutions and export credit agencies, as well as for their development, construction, operation and maintenance.

The projects are expected to be implemented over the next three years and represent an estimated investment of USD 2.9 billion.
